I. INTRODUCTION

The current situation of globalization is contributing to the fact that human migration phenomena, which have always existed, in this day and age have more complex characteristics, and that they bring about deep social and political repercussions in the States that are affected by these migratory fluxes.

The importance of the issues related to migrations is recognised by multiple international organisms: if these issues are not dealt with accordingly, social peace will not be possible on a mid/term basis. These problems require special attention in Spain, due to the lack of experiences and traditions related to the acceptance of immigrants among the population.

2. WHO WE ARE

The University Institute of Studies on Migrations, IUEM (Instituto Universitario de Estudios sobre Migraciones, IUEM) of Comillas Pontifical University was born in 1994 in this context and with the aim of giving an answer from the University. It has broadened its compromise with the area of Migrations, also linking it to development by adapting to the new international context.

The IUEM <http://www.comillas.edu/en/introduction/migration> constitutes an interdisciplinary team, formed by researchers and teachers that have a background on different disciplines of the social and human sciences (economy, actuarial sciences, social anthropology, pedagogy, law, social work, political sciences and theology) and that work in the fields of international migrations and human mobility.

The members of IUEM are:

Director: Dr Alberto Ares Mateos

Researchers: Dr Mercedes Fernández García

3. WHAT WE DO

The IUEM is dedicated to research activities and assessment in the field of migrations and human mobility; to teaching, through three postgraduate programs; and the diffusion and divulgation of research results via courses, symposiums, congresses and the publication of Migraciones magazine, very well valued in different catalogues on impact indexes.

3.1. Research

The approximately 100 studies that have been developed up to now have positioned the IUEM as a reference centre in Spain regarding the fields of international migrations and human mobility <http://www.comillas.edu/en/research/migration>.

One of the major research lines in the IUEM has to do with the follow/up of the trajectories and integration processes of immigrants in the recipient society. In this sense, we study the different areas in which integration will take place (workplace, household, education, neighbourhood relationships, access to different services and provisions...) either for immigrant population in general or for the most representative groups, always under the scope of the legal environment of Spanish and Community immigration and asylum policies.

Below we highlight the main research lines that the IUEM deals with:

➤ Research lines on International Migrations and Human Mobility

Follow up of the trajectories and integration processes of immigrants at the recipient society, from the integration of specific groups.

- Trajectories, processes and spheres of integration
- Designing of Public and Integration Policies
- Housing
- Education
- Access to basic social services
- Economy/ Labour market
- Social relations/networks
- Identity reconstruction
- Identity and religious pluralism
- Migrant groups
- Gender
- Second generation
- Young immigrants
- Exclusion, immigration and social work
- Public International Law on Immigration and Asylum
- EU Law on Immigration and Asylum

- Compared Law on Immigration and Asylum
- Spanish Law on Immigration and Asylum

➤ Research lines on International Cooperation for Development

- Development and migrations
- International cooperation and co/development
- International Law on Human Rights: development and democracy
- International Refugee Law
- Ethics of international cooperation and humanitarian aid
- Global social work
- Fair trade
- Education and development
- Gender and development

Within the research line of “Migrations and development: social networks and transnationalism” research works such as the following have been developed:

- Dominican agrarian institutional strengthening for the training of those settled by the Land Reform
- Identification of needs and demands for the institutional strengthening and technical assessment on local development matters in the province of Loja, Ecuador.
- Improving the immigration flux management of household workers from Bolivia, Ecuador and Peru to the EU, especially Spain.
- Construction of an indicator system to evaluate the socio/educational integration of immigrant pupils (sponsored by the Organización de Estados Iberoamericanos – Latin American States Organisation).
- Exploitation and analysis of the National Immigrant Survey (Encuesta Nacional de Inmigrantes, ENI): Structure of the migratory networks in Spain.
- Immigrant association in Spain
- Co/development: elements for a transnational model:
- Co/development in Spain
- Impact of the constitution of migrant networks in the mobilisation of fluxes and integration of immigrants
- Family re/aggregation among immigrants in Spain: a study of the set/up of practices and processes, and conditions of their ulterior fulfillment.

➤ Active projects:

- CLAIM (Child Law: Action for an Innovative Methodology).
- Integration of Qualified Third Country Nationals in Europe: a New Proposal for Circular Talent Management
- Migrant families and Access to social services

- Teaching of religion in schools in Spain
- Interculturality manual for elderly homes

3.2. Teaching <http://www.comillas.edu/en/training/migration>

. Experience and academic training

The IUEM has a very extensive teaching experience in time, including bachelor – teaching at different centres of the University – postgraduate and PhD programs.

- Master and Specialist in Distance Immigration, on/line (8th edition), taught between 2000 and 2008.
- Master and Specialist in Cooperation for Sustainable Development and Humanitarian Aid (13th Promotion in Cooperation for Development and 8th academic year in Humanitarian Aid)
- PhD Program on International Migrations (taught since 2002/2012 academic year)

Since the 2008/2009 academic year the official post/graduate program on International Migrations and Cooperation for Development is taught inside the European Education Space. This program includes:

- University Master on International Migrations
- University Master on International Cooperation for Development.
- PhD Program on International Migrations and Cooperation for Development

4. HOW WE WORK

The IUEM develops its research activity by direct hiring with public and private institutions regarding research projects in line with the research lines mentioned above. It also participates in private and public contests at a local, autonomic, national, European and international level. In last instance, the assessment and consultancy tasks take place through an agreement with the different institutions and private and public entities.

Moreover, it has collaboration agreements with a series of European and Latin American universities for the carrying out its research activities as well as teaching and dissemination.

5. NETWORKS AND PRODUCTS

In addition to the migration research lines, the team of the institute works organized within two areas of specialization in migration.

➤ The Ibero/American Observatory on Human Mobility, Migration and Development (OBIMID)

It driven and coordinated by the IUEM network, brings together various institutions in Latin America, Caribbean, Portugal and Spain, linked to research on human mobility, migration and development Latin America,

His first publication "Migration in the borders of Latin America" is a "transversal and comprehensive" study that aims to be the first of a series of research publications made in this matter.

➤ Chair in Forced Migrants and Refugees

The Chair in Forced Migrants and Refugees supported and sponsored by INDITEX forms part of the University Institute of Studies on Migration (IUEM) of the Comillas Pontifical University.

Forced migrants and refugees are one of the collectives that best represent the gaps and opportunities in the new global setting. The Chair, in line with the Comillas Pontifical University, was established with the idea of discovering and responding to said reality from its specific academic stance, while maintaining permanent contact with the social agents that work in this field.

The interdisciplinary aims of the project are to undertake theoretical and applied research on the issue in question, the development of collaboration and joint work between social organizations and agents that work with forced migrants and refugees, specialized training and, finally, social awareness and communication, particularly within the university setting. The scope of the project is national, European and international.
